Our Environment

Be A Part of Protecting Our Environment... With over a million boats in use in California each year, small discharges of oil, sewage and toxic maintenance products from boats can add up. Pleasure boats remain in the slip a great deal of the time, therefore, much of the polluting takes place in our harbor. Do your part to protect our environment. Here are some good practices:

- In water cleaning and maintenance activities should be limited to minor touch-ups and maintenance. Larger jobs should be conducted shore-side or in a boat yard with a treatment system.
- Lay tarps under and around your work area to catch spills and loose particles. Use a vacuum to remove debris.
- Refrain from cleaning vessels with soft sloughing or abrasive bottom paints. Always use the least abrasive cleaning method possible.
- Contact your local scrap metal recycler to dispose of zincs. You may get paid for them.
